

NORTHEAST COMMUNITY CHALLENGE COALITION COMMUNITY-WIDE ASSET INITIATIVE

Asset Building Ideas for Grandparents

Being a grandparent means different things to different people. Many children in the United States are being raised by their grandparents or spend a great deal of time with them. Other grandparents live in different states or countries than their grandchildren and rarely, if ever, see them. Whether you see your grandchildren daily or just once in awhile, you can do many things to help nurture their assets. Here are some ideas for building assets for your grandchildren:

- Support your children in their parenting. There are different ways to do this, including telling them what you think they do well, giving them a break by babysitting once in awhile, and being respectful of the way they do things, even if you would do them differently.
- Promote and support clear boundaries, positive values, high expectations and healthy behaviors for your grandchildren. Also, talk with your children about the boundaries and expectations they have for your grandchildren.
- Introduce your grandchildren to other caring elders, such as your friends or other relatives. The more exposure older people and youth have to one another, the better able they will be to relate and get along.
- Help make history come alive for your grandchildren. Tell them stories about their parents and about your own life. Help them think about their future by talking about goals and dreams that you had as a young person.
- Model lifelong learning by reading, taking classes or lessons, or trying new things. Talk with your grandchildren about what you are learning and why it is important to you.
- Model involvement in community service. Talk about your experience and why you have decided to contribute to your community.
- Attend school and community events that your grandchildren are involved in.
- Consider being a mentor or reading tutor for area children and youth.
- If your grandchildren live far away, try to see them on a regular basis. Also, think of creative ways to stay connected with them at other times. Call them often, mail them notes, send email messages, or tape record yourself reading them stories.
- Spend some individual time with each grandchild. Frequently tell each one how special they are and how much you love them.
- Avoid making comparison among your grandchildren. Enjoy what is unique about each one.
- Play games with your grandchildren, such as card games, board games, computer games, or made-up games.
- Expose your grandchildren to cultural, religious, and family rituals.
- Give children enriching experiences with the arts. For example, take them to concerts, theater productions, museums, or art exhibits.
- Work with your children to provide consistent boundaries and messages to your grandchildren.
- Talk about your values, your priorities, and world issues that concern you. Emphasize why these things are important to your and how they influence your life.

Permission given by Search Institute to use Search Institute's materials to develop the Northeast Community Challenge Coalition Community-Wide Asset Initiative.